

Public Consultations

on the IPP (Indigenous People's Plan) and the revision of Benefits Sharing Plan (BSP) for The East Kalimantan–Jurisdictional Emission Reduction Program (EK-JERP), as part of FCPF.

The Government of Indonesia invites feedback on drafts of the revised Benefits Sharing Plan (BSP) and Indigenous People's Plan (IPP) for the East Kalimantan - Jurisdictional Emissions Reduction Program (EK-JERP). The documents can be accessed here: <https://mr.v.kaltimprov.go.id/access-directory>.

What is the EK-JERP?

The EK-JERP is a program that aims to reduce deforestation and forest degradation in East Kalimantan. Through this program, the Government of Indonesia measures reductions in greenhouse gas emissions as a result of reduced deforestation and forest degradation, and earns a 'results-based payment' from Forest Carbon Partnership Facility (FCPF) Carbon Fund.

What is the IPP?

The IPP is a safeguards document for the program that provides guidance on the implementation of activities to ensure the protection of customary (adat) communities. It includes guidance on the processes required to obtain free, prior and informed consent from affected communities for various activities in the program.

What is the BSP?

The BSP is the plan for how to spend the results-based payment. A BSP was disclosed in 2021 and was the basis for distributions of the first payment made to the Government under the Program of USD20.9 million. Drawing on lessons learned from that initial distribution, the BSP is now being revised and public feedback on the revisions is being sought through this public consultation process.

! Public Consultation on the IPP and the revision of the BSP for the East Kalimantan

Samarinda

July – September 2025

The consultations process is open to all stakeholders. All feedback received will be reviewed and taken into account to finalize the documents. Stakeholders will be informed about how their input has been considered.

How can you participate?

1 Submit feedback online:

Feedback can be submitted via email to feedback.fcpf@kaltimprov.go.id or <https://bit.ly/InputKonsultasiFCPF2025>.

2 Participate in-person, in East Kalimantan.

The Government will organize a series of provincial and district level consultation workshops in East Kalimantan. These events will be open to the public and focused on soliciting feedback from a range of stakeholders who might be affected by the program or involved in implementation.

3 Participate in the consultation meetings online. A Zoom option will be available, and you can submit comments to the hosts online during the events.
